

In this presentation, Linda Gorham takes a lighthearted look at President Obama's youth – from living in Hawaii and Indonesia, to attending high school and college, to marrying Michelle LaVaughn Robinson, and ultimately to the White House with his two daughters Sasha and Malia – and of course his dogs, Bo Diddly and Sunny.

"In January 2009, Barack Obama became the first African American president of the United States. Sometimes I wonder if he was thinking about the words of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. I wonder if he was hoping people would not judge him by the color of his skin, but by the content of his character. You know – for who he was and what he stood for. If I ever get the chance, I think I'll ask him. But for now, let's start at the beginning of this story. Barack Obama didn't start out rich. He didn't start out famous. But he sure was cute."
